The End User may only use the Dataset after this License has been signed and returned to the Licensor. The End User must return the signed and dated License by email, in PDF format, to the Licensor at the following address `parse1-ewi@tudelft.nl` under the subject "Requesting access to PARSEL dataset".

The End User will receive access to semi-anonymized data and will not attempt to establish the identity, nor attempt to make direct contact with subjects or staff at sites concerning the specific results of individual subjects, nor attempt to contact any of the subjects in general.

6 Copyleft and Open Science

The Licensor grants to the End User the License defined under section 2 under the sole condition that any derivative work, product, services, scientific developments of any kind, or any improvement or modification on all or part of the dataset shall be made freely available to other End Users. A copy of any modification of the Dataset shall be submitted to the Licensor at the following address: `parse1-ewi@tudelft.nl`. The End User shall ensure that, in the event of the modification of the Dataset, the substance of the Material is not altered, the facility still operates and performs its part in an intact, meaningful way. to request and send all requests for distribution to the censor at the following address: `parsel-ewi@tudelft.nl`.

8 Research

Research includes all types of scientific research involving in detailed study of a subject to discover new information or understand the subject better. Here, we also emphasize the need for ethical research that applies the fundamental ethical principles to scientific research, including research design, implementation of research, the use of resources, and research outputs.

9 Commercial use

Any commercial use of the Dataset is strictly prohibited. Commercial use of the Dataset includes, but is not limited to:

- Developing commercial systems;
- Providing the efficiency of commercial systems;
- Testing commercial systems;
- Using screenshots of subjects from the Dataset in an advertisement;
- Selling data or making any commercial use of the dataset
- Broadcasting data from the Dataset

Any violation of this clause will give rise to immediate legal prosecution by the Licensor. Any damages and/or unfair enrichment of the End User due to the breach of the License shall be immediately restituted to the Licensor together with the derivative works, products, and services based on all or part of the Dataset.

10 Publications

The End User shall reference the Dataset in publications. Publications include, but are not limited to:

- Research papers,
- Reports in any form (i.e., posters)
- Articles
- Presentation for educational and conference purposes

All uses of images and videos from the Dataset for demonstration/visualization purposes (articles, presentations, posters) must ensure the privacy of the participants in the Dataset, such as covering their faces or blurring out the identifiable part of the scenery.

All publications that report on research that uses the Dataset will acknowledge this as follows: (Portions of) the research in this paper used the PARSEL Dataset made available by the Delft University of Technology, Delft, The Netherlands.

16 Appendix

The description of the Dataset PARSEL dataset is a multi-modal dataset for modeling, but not limited to, social constructs, such as social perception, situation perception, partner selection, and collaborative behavior in (online) Dyadic Interactions. The dataset was collected online via a crowdsourcing platform Prolific. The dataset consists of two parts. In the first part, participants provided self-reports on questionnaires measuring personality, helpful behavior, partner preferences, and social anxiety. In the second part, we collected audio-video recordings of initial conversations and video-audio recordings of participants engaging in a Feud Task game. All recordings capture participants' upper-body behavior. Besides audio-video recordings, the Dataset includes self-reports measuring their (subjective) perceptions of the situation, the other person, their mood and memories. This Dataset provides a broad scope of social phenomena that can be investigated, going beyond the primary motivation of creating this Dataset.
